

Jonathan Wolf

Biographical Information:

Jonathan Wolf, 44, has lived in Sitka for six years as co-owner and practice manager of Sitka Animal Hospital, where he works alongside his wife, Dr. Toccoa Wolf. The Wolf family chose Sitka after falling in love with the community and are now raising their three-year-old son here. While caring for the community's pets, Jonathan has met thousands of Sitkans from all walks of life, giving him a broad understanding of the community. He brings experience as a small business owner and commercial pilot, and is running for Assembly to help guide Sitka's future, preserve what makes it special, and ensure affordability so families can continue to thrive.

Advocacy Statement:

My family and I chose Sitka after falling in love with this community and all it has to offer. Six years ago, my wife and I purchased the animal hospital, put down roots, and began raising our son here. In that time, I've met thousands of Sitkans and come to deeply value the connections and diversity that make this town so special.

But I've also seen families leave, not because they wanted to, but because the cost of living made it impossible to stay. Housing, child care, utility rates, and grocery bills all weigh heavily on young families. If elected, I will work to make Sitka more affordable and accessible for anyone who wants to build a life here.

I bring a practical, problem-solving mindset shaped by my experiences as a business owner and commercial pilot. I'm not running with an agenda; instead, my focus is on listening, working collaboratively, and ensuring that the qualities that make Sitka unique are preserved for future generations.

I believe we can protect what we love about Sitka while making it possible for families to thrive, and I'd be honored to serve this community.
